Madame Claire Heliot feeding her lions with raw beef in the arena of the Hippodrome, London, 19th December 1901.

Our restaurant is named after the flirtatious and alluring Claire Heliot, one of the early performers at The Hippodrome in the early 1900's. She was famous worldwide for feeding raw meat to lions on stage.

Showing no fear for any of her fourteen lions, the New York Times noted 'She pats them on the back like ponies, hugs them like kittens and romps about with them'.

They described it as 'One of the most thrilling animal acts ever seen'.

Madame Heliot always entered the stage to the daredevil music of 'Carmen' but she refused to believe that any of the lions would hurt her and she said that she tamed them with sentimentality; from Auguste (the largest one) to Sacha, the lion that she used to carry off stage on her shoulders every night and who weighed 175 kg.

Here at Heliot Steak House we only serve USDA Prime grade steak for any of the cuts listed above however in exceptional circumstances when USDA Prime isn't available from any of our suppliers or anywhere in London, we may replace with USDA Choice graded steak which is the next grade of USDA available. Please speak with your server or the Restaurant Manager should you require further information.
